

Gillius ADF No2 (GilliusADFN02-Regular.otf from Gillius-Collection-2011-03-12)

This Humanist font covers languages written with a Latin-1 alphabet. It lacks the precomposed l-with-middle-dot used in Catalan (although it has a separate middle dot which is now the preferred approach). It also lacks the Dutch ij digraph which might be seen on old pages. Although it has a dotless i and dotted l, it lacks g-with-breve and so cannot be used for Turkish. There is also a Gillius ADF font in the same package which provides the same codepoints plus U+2113 Script small l and U+212E Estimated symbol : the differences are subtle, but Q and S in this version are closer to Gill Sans.

For variations of the Latin alphabets I attempt to show the whole alphabet, followed by Article 1 of the UDHR (it is traditional!). For other scripts and languages I merely display the digits (if not common 0..9) and Article 1.

This document was prepared using \LaTeX and fontspec. Depending on the font, missing glyphs will be replaced either by nothing at all (occasional fonts do that), a blank space, an empty box, or some other symbol indicating a missing glyph.

The letter forms used in italic fonts do not always match those used in regular fonts. Here is some English text to cover all letters: a quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dogs A QUICK BROWN FOX JUMPED OVER THE LAZY DOGS.

This font has regular and bold weights for normal and italic as well as condensed versions.

2 Quotation-marks, etc.

In real-world usage, particularly when looking at news sites, the presence or absence of the correct quote characters will make a difference. As a coder, I use '...' or "...". but in good text there are variations and this font supports:

left and right single quotes ‘...’	double low 9 and left double quotes „...“
single turned comma, right single quote ‘...’	angle quotes <...>

In Spanish languages, the inverted exclamation-mark ¡ and inverted question-mark ¿ are necessary.
